

UPDATE ON NLRB ACTIONS

As Mr. Lyman pointed out last week, the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) now requires private employers to post a Notice of Employee Rights under the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA). A recent New York Times article on this new requirement discusses an upcoming decision by the NLRB that is expected to address unionization of long-term care employees specifically. Any developments concerning this decision will be included in a future posting as they become available.
